“Build the home of your dreams in your favorite old neighborhood” is the philosophy of Scott and Margaret Busyn of Great Neighborhood Homes. Their boutique focus ensures that their homes fit the established neighborhood in which they are building, while providing their clients refined architecture and modern amenities that are customized to their needs.

For Wooddale Glen that included uplifted roof peaks and a mix of stone, brick and stucco to give the home an authentic historic appearance, and an in-home microbrewery and a 60" Heatilator Crave linear fireplace in the living room. This stunning fireplace is surrounded by a custom faux concrete wall delivering a dramatic focal point that introduces a contemporary industrial component into the light infused great room. “The use of the modern décor elements, such as the fireplace, in the traditionally styled home keeps the space current and relevant, now and into the future,” explains Margaret Busyn.

“We work with our clients from space planning and material selection all the way to furniture and decor to ensure the home building process is fun, simple and results in a timeless and beloved home,” says Busyn.
