w. b. builders is known for crafting renovations and custom homes that suit their clients' lifestyles and compliment the surrounding neighborhood. They employ a four-step building process designed to truly understand their client's wants, needs and preferences. The clients' vision is delivered through innovative design that blends current building materials and practices with traditional craftsmanship.

Oaklawn's modern take on a traditional Tudor is an outstanding example of this balance. The home features current elements such as concrete flooring, black framed windows, open concept living, a large mudroom area and a blurring of indoor and outdoor living spaces to fit today's style and preferences. Custom-built steel handrails, large natural white oak plank flooring, oak and walnut kitchen cabinets, and two large fireplaces are essential traditional elements that bring warmth, character and charm to the home.

"We use fireplaces as a focal point in all of our home designs, whether it be in a living room or basement," says Ronda Brandvold, designer at w. b. builders. "We always recommend fireplaces," continues Brandvold; "they provide warmth to basement spaces and add a feeling of authenticity and timelessness throughout the home."
